

Why should you play at UK-licensed casinos?

By registering with a UK Gambling Commission-licensed online casino, you can be confident that not only is your money safe, but that the online casino has complied with and adheres to strict licencing conditions. These words are intended to prevent cheating, keep games fair, and to control and assure a high RTP (return to player) %. The Gambling Commission is continuously trying to protect vulnerable players and levying fines on licence holders who fail to achieve their high standards.

It is simple to determine whether an online casino has a valid UK Gambling Commission licence. There are two ways to find out: go to the online casino's homepage and scroll down till you see the Gambling Commission emblem, or it may indicate that they have a licence and display the licence number. Betting Limits in UK Online Casinos

At the moment, there is no restriction to the amount you can bet every hand/spin at a UK online casino. However, in order to reduce the risk of gambling-related harm, the Gambling Commission is actively investigating the implementation of a maximum stake per hand/spin of £2, as well as if a maximum daily spending restriction should be set.

This comes on the heels of the successful decrease of the maximum bet on Fixed Odds Terminals (FOBT) from £100 to £2 in 2019.

Jackpots in UK Online Casinos

There are numerous online jackpot games, the majority of them are online slots. Because of the high number of "jackpots" that may be won with just one spin of the reels, these games are extremely popular with players.
